Items of Interest Regarding the Players.

The hordes of Yale shouters and Princeton tigers who took possession of the uptown hotels last night were up betimes this morning preparing to make their presence felt at the great Thanksgiving day football game, which will wind up the season this afternoon at Manhattan Field.

CAPT. WARREN OF PRINCETON.

The collection of the town for another twenty-four hours at least. The extra veranda which they have imparted to the Tenderloin precinct during the wee small hours of the morning will undoubtedly assume a deeper and richer tint tonight after the contest is over. Victor and vanquished alike will be either celebrating their good fortune or striving to revive their drooping spirits and forget their disappointment under the exhilarating influence of the cup that cheers as well as incite.

CAPT. MCHUGH OF YALE.

Long after midnight the streets in the neighborhood of Madison square rang with the cheers and yells of the hilarious undergraduates, who roamed about in squads of a dozen or more, and took in the sights and pleasures of the big city, free from the restraints of college discipline and utterly forgetful of the fact that such things as college faculties existed.

Most of them showed up this morning in pretty fair shape, although there were a good many worn and haggard faces, which told of a sleepless night. The corridors of the Fifth Avenue Hotel, where the Yale eleven is quartered, and the Hoffman Hotel, where the Princeton team is housed, were crowded with the great men of the day make themselves visible to outsiders.

They were up early and breakfasted before the crowd began to collect. Then they retired to their apartments to rest until the time should come for them to start for the field.

Walter Camp, the father of football at Yale, came to town with the team last night. He is as handsome as ever, and when asked how his boys were feeling he replied that they were in the pink of condition and were confident of success.

"The team will comprise the same men who played at Springfield on Saturday," he said, "and if I say it myself, it will be the best football playing I ever saw. They will put up a game to-day that will simply be out of sight."

"What do you think of Princeton's team?" he was asked.

"They have made wonderful improvement within the past two weeks, both in team play and individual work, and it is my opinion that they will make fully as strong a fight as Harvard. If not stronger."

"Our men do not feel that they have a clutch by any means, and if they win they will have to work hard for the victory, in my opinion."

Capt. McHugh, with his long bushy hair, which gives him a comical-like appearance, and the giant, giant-looking Hefflinger, who is a member of the team, were at the Hoffman Hotel and endeavored to get a game to-day that will simply be out of sight."

Trainer McManis, who was found at the Hoffman Hotel, did not appear to be at all disheartened by the prospects.

"Princeton has a lot of new men in the ranks this year, and it is natural that the public should look at Yale as a sure winner," he said.

"Yale has been playing great football, but I don't wait until we get our men on the field. They will give the champion a pretty hard run to a crack, mark my words."

Princeton undergraduates talk confidently, but they evidently are a little nervous about the result. They are clearly even of being made that Yale would score at least 10 points.

Early this morning the odds had not changed, and money was ready in any amount to back Yale at 2 to 1, and even 3 to 1. The few bets made, however, were at 3 to 1. The most popular form of betting was on the result, even money being offered that Princeton would not score and one of $100 to $200 being made that Yale would score at least 10 points.

Freshman Class. They received very few people, however.

According to the present arrangement the teams will line up this afternoon as follows:

Left End, Harker, 25. Age, 20. Height, 5' 10". Weight, 175. Right Tackle, W. Winter, 20. Age, 20. Height, 5' 10". Weight, 175. Left Tackle, W. Winter, 20. Age, 20. Height, 5' 10". Weight, 175. For Yale the brunt of the battle will no doubt be borne by Capt. McHugh, Hefflinger, Morrison and Bliss, all of whom are old players.

McHugh is an ideal half-back, and his splendid line play placed him in the foremost rank of football players. He is a marvel of quickness and agility, and in running and dodging he has had few equals. He is also a splendid general, and knows how to keep his men well in hand.

Hefflinger is a full-back, and his splendid line play placed him in the foremost rank of football players. He is a marvel of quickness and agility, and in running and dodging he has had few equals. He is also a splendid general, and knows how to keep his men well in hand.

Morrison is a full-back, and his splendid line play placed him in the foremost rank of football players. He is a marvel of quickness and agility, and in running and dodging he has had few equals. He is also a splendid general, and knows how to keep his men well in hand.

Bliss is a full-back, and his splendid line play placed him in the foremost rank of football players. He is a marvel of quickness and agility, and in running and dodging he has had few equals. He is also a splendid general, and knows how to keep his men well in hand.

Stanley Morrison seconds Hefflinger well at right guard, and plays an almost invincible barrier to opposing center rushers.

Bliss is a small man, but strong and nervy, and a splendid line player. He is an ideal player and can always be entrusted with the ball in a tight place.

McCormick is a full-back, and his splendid line play placed him in the foremost rank of football players. He is a marvel of quickness and agility, and in running and dodging he has had few equals. He is also a splendid general, and knows how to keep his men well in hand.

For Princeton the right half-back, Hefflinger, is regarded as the strongest all-around player in the team. He is, like his brother, a captain of a year's team, small but sturdy, and though he is a new player at Princeton he has been playing for several years, and many consider him better than his brother.

In the center of the rush line Princeton is very strong. It is in the line that the average weight of the team is several pounds heavier than that of Yale's center rush.

Symmes is a somewhat slow, but rugged, old player and captain. He is a full-back, and his splendid line play placed him in the foremost rank of football players. He is a marvel of quickness and agility, and in running and dodging he has had few equals. He is also a splendid general, and knows how to keep his men well in hand.

other side. The white lines on the field indicate five-yard spaces, and are for the assistance of the referee in determining whether or not a runner succeeds in making the necessary distance.

A "drop kick" is when the man running with the ball is tackled and is thrown to the ground and is not able to get up in time to kick the ball. It is a very dangerous play, and is not allowed.

There is only one other way in which points can be scored. This is by means of a "safety," which counts two points against the side making it. When the team is very near a goal line and the side defending the goal has the ball they are sometimes forced to make a "safety."

A "drop kick" is made by letting the ball fall from the hands and kicking it down behind the line. It is a very dangerous play, and is not allowed.
